Greetings:

Welcome Messages from Co-Chairs:

Dear Valued Partners and Sponsors,

We are delighted to announce that the Asian Oncology Nursing Society (AONS) and the International Society of Nurses in Cancer Care (ISNCC) will host their first-ever joint conference in August 2027 in Tokyo, Japan. For this milestone event, the Japanese Society of Cancer Nursing (JSCN) is playing a pivotal role, spearheading the extensive planning and management on behalf of AONS.

Under the main theme, “The Essence of Cancer Nursing: Innovation through Global Collaboration,” this landmark event will bring together oncology nursing professionals, researchers, and leaders not only from Asia but from all over the world.

Our vision is to create a dynamic platform to address both universal challenges and region-specific issues in cancer. Rooted in the timeless and universal essence of cancer nursing that bridges our past and future, this conference will serve as a catalyst for discovering solutions through current nursing technologies, as well as driving the development and pursuit of innovative new approaches.

For frontline clinical nurses, this gathering will provide practical insights to enhance their daily care starting the very next day. For nurse researchers, it will offer an invaluable opportunity to spark new ideas, reappraise existing data, and discuss the implementation of evidence into clinical practice.

We are fully committed to planning and delivering a deeply rewarding and impactful conference for all. We sincerely invite you to partner with us in this historic gathering and look forward to your generous support.

Warm regards,

Miho Suzuki, President of the Asian Oncology Nursing Society, and

Greetings:

About the Hosts:

The Asian Oncology Nursing Society (AONS) was officially established on November 21, 2013, in Bangkok, Thailand, born out of a shared vision among Asian oncology nurses to create a dedicated regional network. Co-founded by leaders from Japan and Thailand, AONS was launched with the full support of nursing organizations from nine founding countries and regions: China, India, Indonesia, Japan, South Korea, the Philippines, Singapore, Taiwan, and Thailand.

The primary mission of AONS is to advance cancer control and elevate oncology nursing standards throughout Asia. It achieves this by promoting the exchange of clinical practices and fostering collaborative research and education among academic institutions and healthcare organizations across the region. AONS serves as a unified voice for oncology nurses in Asia, addressing unique regional healthcare challenges.

With the rapid rise of aging populations across Asia, the region faces a significant increase in cancer cases. AONS is dedicated to developing creative, culturally competent strategies for cancer prevention, long-term survivorship, palliative care, and end-of-life care. Recognizing the rich diversity of Asian cultures, the society emphasizes patient-centered education that empowers individuals in lifestyle self-management, while integrating holistic total care that honors the harmony of mind and body.

Through biennial conferences and continuous cross-border partnerships, AONS empowers frontline professionals and researchers to share their wisdom. By joining forces with the ISNCC for the historic 2027 joint conference in Tokyo, AONS continues to drive collaborative innovation, shaping the future of global cancer care.

International Society of Nurses in Cancer Care (ISNCC) was established in 1984 and is an international membership organization of oncology nurse leaders dedicated to improving the health and well-being of people at risk for or living with cancer, promoting nurses' roles in improving cancer care and developing nursing leadership in cancer care delivery. ISNCC consists of national cancer nursing societies; regional cancer nursing societies; oncology institutions and individual cancer nurse clinicians, researchers, educators and managers. The Society partners with various international organizations involved in cancer control and is affiliated with the Union for International Cancer Control and the International Council of Nurses.

We envision to lead and empower the global nursing community in equitable and innovative cancer control and care. Our missions are: 1) to lead and amplify the role of nursing in reducing the global burden of cancer through collaboration, advocacy, education, and the advancement of nursing science; and 2) to promote excellence in quality and standards of cancer care aimed to improve the health and well-being of people at risk for and/or living with cancer. To achieve our vision and missions, we developed the strategic plan 2026–2029 with the following four aims.

- Build and strengthen global nursing leadership in cancer control and care
- Enhance educational and resources outreach
- Advocate for nursing in cancer prevention, control and care
- Leverage technology to reach stakeholders and enhance their engagement with the organization.
- Strengthen global partnerships
- Diversify funding sources and enhance financial sustainability
